Times-Picayune: Tulane will launch master's in energy management program

January 31, 2011

The Times-Picayune

From The Times-Picayune, Jan. 30, 2011:

> Taking advantage of its presence among major energy players along the Gulf Coast, Tulane University plans to start offering a master's degree in energy management this summer, an 11-month program focusing on the business side of the industry in an effort to better prepare students to work in fields like energy finance, risk management and trading.

To read the entire article, visit nola.com:

http://www.nola.com/business/index.ssf/2011/01/tulane_will_launch_masters_in.html