TABA elects eight to board of directors

August 29, 2013

The Tulane Association of Business Alumni (TABA) has elected eight members to serve on its board of directors. The new board members' three-year terms began in January 2013.

Shannon Brice

Aimee Adatto Freeman

Dominik Knoll

Frank Russo

Katie LaCorte Teen

Lindsey Varney

Chris Williams

The new board members are Brian Banks (BSM ’04, MACCT ’05), supervisor at Bourgeois Bennett; Shannon Brice (MBA ’04), chief financial officer of Richard’s Disposal; Aimee Adatto Freeman (MBA ’95), owner and president of Adatto Freeman Strategic Consulting; Dominik Knoll (MBA ’10), CEO of the World Trade Center of New Orleans; Frank Russo (MBA ’92), senior manager for Governance, Regulatory & Risk Strategy at Deloitte & Touche; Katie LaCorte Teen (MBA ’11, MGM ’11), partner and account management director at the Marketing Hub; Lindsey Varney (MBA ’12), regional social media coordinator for Harrah’s New Orleans; and Chris Williams (MBA ’11), project analyst with Barriere Construction.

The Tulane Association of Business Alumni (TABA) was established in 1938 to encourage the active involvement of alumni in supporting the Freeman School’s goal to be one of the leading business schools in the nation and the premier business school in the southern United States. TABA achieves that mission by focusing its efforts in the areas of career management, development and external relations.