Tulane Women in Business strike a pose at NAWMBA Conference

October 31, 2017
