Healthy Living Healthy Planet Radio: Energy Production

February 29, 2024

Pierre Conner, professor of practice and executive director of the Tulane Energy Institute, was interviewed about energy production and consumption for Healthy Living Healthy Planet radio.

> I teach 19- to 22-year-olds and they know what the world needs to look like, and in a prosperous world, [it's] a transition to zero carbon. But what I tell them is unless you understand the pitfalls and hurdles to make that transition, you can't chart the path to where you want to be. So education [focusing on] energy transition is so important right now. [This] generation will be making these decisions for the next several generations to come.

To hear the interview in its entirety, visit healthylivinghealthyplanetradio.com:

https://www.healthylivinghealthyplanetradio.com/guests/pierre-conner