The National Desk: Homeowners insurance rates to increase for all after California fires

January 24, 2025

Chris Otten, professor of practice in business & legal studies, was interviewed by The National Desk for a story about expected increases in national insurance rates in the wake of the California fires.

> "Reinsurance rates are going thought the roof because of the increased risks at the local level. So what happens in California is going to impact other states indirectly at a minimum through the reinsurance increases."
