insecurity in New Orleans. I worked with Toups Family Meal in Freeman for a service learning project, and I was grateful for the opportunity to collaborate again. Knowing that our service

What was your favorite business course?

White Collar Crime I, taught by lawyers and professors Carboni and Ginsberg, sparked a strong interest of mine in the field and gave me a comprehensive understanding of key laws, cases, judicial procedures while reinforcing the importance of having a strong moral compass.

Who is your favorite business professor and why?

My favorite business professor is Professor Christopher Otten. I took his Law of E-Commerce course and am now completing my BSM Capstone presentation on his restaurant. I admire Professor Otten’s dedication to his students and his emphasis on civil discourse and effective communication. His class structure was highly interactive and discussion-based and made the learning experience much more engaging and collaborative. It really encouraged us to think critically, collaborate, and learn from one another. Professor Otten is extremely knowledgeab and passionate about both his work and the Freeman community.

What's your favorite memory of Freeman?

One of my favorite memories at Freeman was competing at the 2024 Indiana University Natio Diversity Case Competition. Our team presented a 24-month implementation plan for a company, showcasing months of our collaboration, hard work, and preparation. Through this experience, I learned first-hand of the critical impact that strategic decisions have on a business, and how essential realistic implementation timelines are to success. This experience helped me grow as a person and a student, and it made me more grounded in developing ideas that balance creativity and practicality. I competed with teammates Bri Ann Hanley, Keona Patel, and Kaalan Day, all who have since become lifelong friends, and this wouldn't have been possible without the endless support we received from Freeman faculty advisors Dr. Valentine, Dr. Chen, and I Roz.

What are the top items on your professional bucket list?

I want to attend law school and build a strong investment portfolio.

What's a fun fact about yourself?

I'm ambidextrous!
